

Revision to Youth Work Academic Certificate

Writer: Rebecca Fabiano

April 12, 2012

Effective Fall 2012

One minor change is being proposed to the Youth Work Academic Certificate.

- Currently the Youth Work catalog page shows students as having a choice between CIS 100-Introduction to Computer Use and CIS 103-Applied Computer Technology. However, CIS 100 is no longer offered at CCP and thus CIS 100 is being removed from the Youth Work Academic Certificate catalog page.

Rationale

CIS 100 has not been offered for years and has been removed from the College Catalog. The computer skills taught in CIS 100 were very basic. As the general population has become more technologically savvy, the need for this course has disappeared. Most Youth Work students enter the College with these skills. It should be noted that even when CIS 100 was offered, few Youth Work students took this option because they intended to pursue an Associate's degree and therefore needed CIS 103.

CIS 100 was a one-credit course. Now students will be required to take CIS 103 which is a three-credit course. This will increase the minimum number of credits needed by two credits. See the revised program grid.
